3. Image delivery

4. Model permission for photographer use

The Model gives the Photographer written permission to reproduce, display, publish, and reasonably edit photographs from the agreed session for the Photographer's portfolio, website, social media, exhibitions, printed portfolio, and promotion of the Photographer's own photography services, worldwide and without a fixed end date, subject to applicable law and any written restrictions below. Credit may use the public name agreed below. This permission does not include third-party advertising, stock licensing, resale, AI training, or materially misleading or defamatory uses; these require a separate written agreement.

5. Model image use and copyright

The Photographer retains copyright in the photographs. The Model receives a non-exclusive license to use the delivered edited and unedited pictures on their personal website, social media, and modeling portfolio, with credit to Krysti Hennessey / Fashion Hopeful Pix where credits can be included. Commercial advertising, resale, and third-party licensing require separate written permission. Neither party may imply an endorsement beyond the agreed collaboration.

Either party may pause or stop the session. Questions, requested restrictions, or future use concerns should be raised with the Photographer in writing. Changes to this agreement require both parties' written agreement. This agreement does not waive rights that cannot legally be waived.
